What is PDCA?

PDCA stands for Plan-Do-Check-Act and means four-step approach for continuous improvement. PDCA is first created in the 1920s by Walter Andrew Shewhart, an American physicist, then later popularized worldwide by American professor, William Edwards Deming. This is why PDCA is sometimes called Deming cycle.

This session will focus on the powerful tool of PDCA, an essential element of day to day working and give an insight into the eight steps of the whole cycle, starting from Planning to Review. This session will also emphasize on the importance of Planning as the key to success of any project. Participants will be able to understand the importance of working in a systematic way, the importance of Planning and processes and standardization. This learning will enable them to carry out their tasks in a more professional and efficient way.
